

Time for Tease

Like Claridges set in the middle of a field, Time For Tease brings a distinctly feminine touch of glamour to Bestival. Located next door to the Bollywood Bar, this sumptuous all-seated tent proffers a concept so genius you'll wish you'd thought of it first: combining, as it does, the luxury of high tea (served on china cake stands, naturally), and a flute of bubbly stuff, with the glitz and razzamatazz of burlesque. So, treat yourself, put your feet up, and make some Time For Tease. What better way is there to while away a few hours than indulging in Earl Grey, cucumber sarnies and cream scones while being entertained by the very finest snake charmers, knife-throwers and tassel-swinging ladies in the business...

Time for Tease

Transforming afternoon tea as we know it, sassy burlesque act Time For Tease fuses the genteel tradition of taking tea with the rather more tantalising world of burlesque cabaret, to create a whole new experience. The girls have already performed at numerous festivals and even put on a show at Kate Moss's 34th birthday party. Visitors to the stand will be able to enter a competition to win a table for two – with a bottle of champagne – at their London event Afternoon Tease, and, of course, tuck into some tasty cakes and biscuits.

» Stand No 15

Event Magazine
March 2008

Lace Lingerie magazine
Spring / Summer 2008

Gâteaux Vivants

Combine classic afternoon tea of sandwiches and scones with saucy burlesque cabaret with Time for Tease. Catch their Gâteaux Vivants - Tableaux Vivants with a lot more cake!
www.timefortease.co.uk

Elle magazine
August 2008

TEASE-MAIDS

If you're looking for a fun and unusual idea for your hen party, then why not join in the growing trend for burlesque? Time For Tease is the brainchild of Zoe Fletcher, a burlesque performer and long-time fan of afternoon tea. There is now a series of regular events organised, or the company can arrange bespoke events which can offer less risqué burlesque content (if you have to invite your mother-in-law!) and packages which include a burlesque lesson, performance or craft session, combined with afternoon tea and cakes or champagne! Kate Moss recently had glam rock-themed cupcakes and a burlesque fan dance at her birthday party – so you'll be following a celeb trend too! See more at www.timefortease.co.uk.

Enjoy a naughty
but nice hen night!

COOL CAKES

Thanks to some cool cake enthusiasts, our favourite sweet treats have new-found kudos. Cherry Bakewell and Fondant Fancy (aka Nikki Shaill and Lorraine Williams) are the founders of guerrilla art project The Great Cake Escape. A mix of Banksy and Mr Kipling, they place cupcakes across London, Sheffield and Leeds in covert 'cake drops'. Then there's Zoe Fletcher, who hosts Brighton's Shall I Be Mother? and London's Afternoon Tease get-togethers that mix burlesque with buns of the edible kind. She provided the glitter cupcakes at Kate Moss's birthday party this year and plans on tickling festivalgoers' taste buds with a cabaret-and-cake tent at this year's Bestival. Virtue or vice? In the words of Cherry Bakewell, 'Doesn't carrot cake count as one of your five-a-day, anyway?'

